

Pedalite relaunch

By Jez Loftus, Technical Editor

No more having to remember lights or replace batteries as the nights draw in.

The Pedalites are powered by pedalling, lighting up as soon as you start turning the cranks. They store charge and stay on for up to five minutes after stopping, and are an ideal backup to regular lights. The tough pedal casing houses flashing LED lights for 360 degree visibility, making sure you'll be seen from the side at junctions.

The price of the Pedalites has also been lowered from £40 to £35 for the autumn shipment. Check out www.pedalite.com for more information and back here at a later date as we'll be giving a pair a thorough review just in time for winter.

Lighting up while you pedal (Pedalite ©)

